

BRAZILIAN MUTINY IS SOON OVER

Congress Quickly Yields to Demands Made by the Sailors.

SHOTS FIRED AT RIO

This Form of Argument Helps the Statesmen to Decide Without Delay.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 25.—The capital slept last night with guns of its own navy trained upon it. Toward 1 o'clock this morning the mutinous scout boat Deodoro fired upon the naval arsenal. The cannonading did not last long, and little damage was done. The Deodoro accompanied by the battleship Minas Geraes then put to sea.

Did Not Respond.
The local garrisons and loyal torpedo boats did not respond, although, according to this morning's papers, their officers had received a sinister order as to their duties in certain contingencies. The morning broke with the mutinous craft still outside the harbor, and they did not return to port until some hours later.

Business Quickly Done.
Congress met in extra ordinary session this morning. The deputies first concurred with the senate in granting amnesty to the mutineers. Both houses then passed resolutions conceding the demands of the sailors.

As soon as the action of congress became known the mutinous crews surrendered, and the revolt was at an end, and the city resumed its normal activities.

Washington Gets Details.
Washington, Nov. 25.—Stirring details of the mutiny on board four Brazilian naval vessels reached the Brazilian embassy yesterday in an official dispatch from the minister of foreign affairs, Baron Rio Branco.

According to the advices received the sailors mutinied because of trouble with their superiors while a majority of the officers were ashore, and massacred all the officers, who upon returning aboard ship refused to join their cause. Later the sailors fired on the city of Rio de Janeiro, causing great damage.

Officers Are Loyal.
It is reported to the embassy that the officers to a man refused to join the mutiny, despite the sight of their brother officers being killed before them. Every officer on the battleships San Paolo and Minas Geraes, on the cruiser Floriano and the scout Bahia at the time of the mutiny are reported to have been killed.

Among these was Captain Baptista Dai Neves, who was in command of the Minas Geraes. Captain Dai Neves had recently returned to Brazil from the United States. While here he was presented to President Taft by R. De Lima E. Silva, charge d'affaires of the Brazilian embassy. The president talked with him for some time on naval affairs and complimented him on his fine command.

Two Ships Powerful.
The battleships San Paolo and Minas Geraes by far eclipse any other fighting craft in the navy of Brazil. They are each armed with ten 12-inch rifles.

The cruiser Floriano was laid down in 1897, being a sister ship to the Deodoro, which is in command of government officers. It has a displacement of 3,162 tons and has for armament two 9.2 rifles, one in each turret, four 4.7 guns, six 6-pounders, some smaller rifles and two torpedo tubes.

May Dictate Terms.
With competent officers in charge it is felt here that the mutiny might easily take on even a more serious aspect than it now has. Controlling as they do the two new battleships, with their powerful 12-inch guns, the mutineers, properly directed, might inflict tremendous damage and enforce demands for supplies and needed material.

Confirmation of reports of the mutiny was received at the state department from United States Consul Slechta at Rio de Janeiro. He gave no details, but said the ships in the harbor were in command of the hostile sailors.

Transportation Suffers.
New Orleans, Nov. 25.—A private cablegram received here from Rio Janeiro says:

LORDS IGNORE THE GOVERNMENT BILL

Parliament Will Be Dissolved Without Action Upon British Government's Veto.

London, Nov. 25.—The house of lords last night without a division, adopted the resolutions offered by Lord Lansdowne, the opposition leader, and decided to send them, together with Lord Rosebery's plans for the reformation of the membership of the lords, to the house of commons. The upper chamber then adjourned until Monday, when dissolution of parliament will take place. Thus the government's veto bill has been ignored by the house of lords.

A noticeable feature of the debate has been the number of liberal peers who supported Lord Lansdowne's scheme and opposed the government's veto bill. In taking part in the debate in the house of lords on the Lansdowne resolution Baron Loreburn, lord chancellor, incidentally avowed himself strongly in favor of home rule for Ireland.

frauds said to have been practiced against the railroad.

Two counts in the blanket indictment also charge the operation of a confidence game. Each defendant's bond is fixed at $20,000.

Vast Sum Illegally Taken.
A total of $4,825,650, it is charged, was illegally taken from the Illinois Central by the four men named. In company with various repairs and equipment companies which also are mentioned in the indictment. The loss by the alleged fraudulent deals is estimated by the present railroad officials was $1,500,000, but the whole amount of the transactions with the car repair companies since 1905, when the alleged illegal conspiracy was declared to have been conceived, is named in the indictment.

Buker a Go-Between.
Buker, who escaped prosecution when the arrests were first made, was indicted on the testimony of Henry Osterman, president of the Osterman Manufacturing company, who testified that Buker was a go-between who carried the alleged illegal money gained by padding expense bills to the former railroad officials named in the indictment. Osterman also said the four men indicted were stockholders or received a salary as dividends from his company.

Was General Manager.
Harriman formerly was general manager of the Illinois Central; Taylor general storekeeper and Ewing general superintendent. At the time the alleged repair bill padding was done, Buker was superintendent of machinery, remaining in that position till last April.

Most of the testimony on which the indictments were based was given in the preliminary hearing in the municipal court and repeated before the grand jury. Just before the civil suit was filed which exposed the alleged padding, Buker resigned and since is said to have been living in Canada as president of a car heating company.

Prevented Checking Up.
Illinois Central clerks testified at graphed all republican members to be in their seats when the house is called to order Monday, Dec. 5, and to make their plans to stay here until the Christmas holidays. It has been decided by the leaders in congress to begin work at once upon the supply appropriation bills and get them out of the way so as much time as possible may be given to matters contained in the president's message.

To Rush Indian Bill.
It is planned to have the Indian appropriation bill reported on Tuesday following the opening of the session, and while the house is working upon that the finishing touches will be given the legislative, executive and judicial and District of Columbia appropriation bills. In this way it is intended to keep the house at work, without wasting any time, until the customary recess is taken for Christmas.

Progress Is Unusual.
Ordinarily not much progress is made in getting appropriation bills out of the way until after the first of the year. The leaders think it possible, by keeping a majority present, to pass several appropriation bills through the house before the holiday recess.

These are yesterday's results summarized from telegrams from all over Mexico.

FEARS TO STIR UP STRIFE

Fred W. Fleming of Kansas City
President and Oklahoma City
Next Meeting Place.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 25.—The selection of Oklahoma City as the next place of meeting, the adoption of a resolution refusing to favor either New Orleans or San Francisco for the Panama exposition in 1915 and the selection of Fred W. Fleming of Kansas City for president was the most important work of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress yesterday. The final session will be held today.

The following officers, in addition to President Fleming, were elected:

Other Officers.
First vice president—N. G. Larimore, Larimore, N. D.

Second vice president—J. H. Allen, Pocatamos, La.

Third vice president—Frank H. Gould, San Francisco.

Ask More Consular Agents.

The only other resolution adopted was one urging the extension of the consular service to all important foreign countries as rapidly as possible and asking that these consular agents be proportioned as nearly as possible to the different states so that all would have representation abroad.

In refusing to endorse either New Orleans or San Francisco the resolution recited that the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress was organized for the good of all sections and that to endorse one city as against another must necessarily stir up strife and hard feelings.

TAFT ENEMY OF DEEPER WATERWAYS

So President Kavanaugh of Lakes-to-Gulf Association Declares.

GRILLS EXECUTIVE

Says He Delayed Appointing
Board and Then Picked Prejudiced Men.

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—Factions representing Senator Lorimer and Governor Deneen of Illinois, struggled for representation on the resolutions committee on the floor of the waterways convention today. Each side nominated a representative. Congressman Rainey was chosen to represent the Lorimer faction and Isham B. Randolph by the Deneen followers.

DAMAGE FURNITURE.

When it was seen a selection could not be made the delegation moved to a distant part of the hall. On their way there the delegates knocked over chairs and tore state banners from their standards. The caucus reported it had placed Randolph on the resolutions committee and Rainey on the nominations committee. During the caucus Lorimer and Deneen led their factions in high-pitched voices.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 25.—The convention of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association began here today. Reports of the secretary and treasurer and an address by President Kavanaugh were the principal business of the morning session.

Has Changed Sentiment.

President Kavanaugh pointed out that this association had for years condemned the "pork barrel" policy and demanded that river improvement be put on a practical basis in which commercial interests should be held paramount to political considerations. As the result demands for waterway improvement have been non-political and the pork barrel policy is doomed.

Siam for Taft.

Even the president, despite the growing indifference toward our great project and a favorable leaning toward his own river, has announced that hereafter no "pork barrel" will receive his approval. "While no single instrumentality can alone bring about a revolution among a great people," continued Kavanaugh, "this organization is among those that have in the last two years stirred public sentiment to its depths, awakened the spirit of citizenship, and implanted in the hearts of our people a sense of civic duty rising above the call of parties or demand of bosses."

Praises Latest Bill.

He discussed and pointed out the necessity for better transportation facilities. Referring to congressional action he said: "Thanks chiefly to the fidelity of the men now present, the 61st congress at its session last winter enacted a river and harbor bill superior to its predecessors in several respects, largely in that it contained a modest appropriation for a lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway, conditional on approval by the board of engineers, for which provision was made."

Shows Lack of Good Faith.

"The item was well intended and had the intent been carried out faithfully the critical point of our project would now be doubtless past. It is a bitter disappointment that we have to record at least partial failure of this intent through an official partially first noted by some of us in last year's river trip. The president postponed appointing the board authorized in the act for many weeks, thus making it apparent the board's report in conformity with the act of congress must necessarily be hastily arrived at, and appointed men on this board whom the people feared unfriendly to the project. Thus by indirection, the purpose of the legislation has been delayed, if not thwarted."

Misjudges Temper of People.

"Surely the president misunderstands the meaning of that memorable river trip; surely he misjudges the temper of the men of the interior, indeed of the country at large. Our present need is for legislation so definite and specific that it will become effective, despite indifference and unfriendliness from any quarter, however exalted, or however unexpected and unwarranted the opposition may be."

Few Governors There.

The treasurer's report showed the expenditure of $26,715 during the past year. Deneen of Illinois and Sloan of Arizona were the only governors present today. Governor Hadley of Missouri will attend tomorrow.

Dickinson's Son Dead.
